Sælir félagar, þessi mynd er súlitið sérstök, aðeins í dekkri kantinum, og ferskur húmor sem eldist vel → það er súlitið að vera að lifa í mínum grín og gleði og ekki hugsa að þú hvert peningarnir eru að fara í. Lýsingin út myndina er alveg hróðileg.
Það er samt alveg bráðskemmtulegur húmor. Allskyns góðis-karakterar eins og þú & Daniel sem lenda í allskyns vandvörðum út myndina. og kynmast fólk sem mislíkar það hvernig þeir hafa séð. Þeir eru meiriháttar húmoristar sem hugsa aðeins um ~~peninga~~ kvennmenn og peninga.
Þessi mynd snýst súlitið um það hvernig þeir félagarnir reyna að afla sér pening með ýmsum hætti. Þeir reyna að fara út á sjó en fá í stað vinnu í fiskihúsi þar sem þeir glímast við allskyns fiskidóteri. Daniel nær að plata aðalma-

Þessi mynd er skuggalega gömul og er þú lýsingin er alveg hróðileg, húmorinn endist þó vel... allt í allt er þetta alveg ágætis mynd an súlitið sérstök.

- STILL - 1970..

The Woman ran towards <sup>the</sup> phonebooth, which was on the next streetcorner, she opened his door and went in. Then she closed the door safely afterwards. I saw through the glass-window of the booth, that she picked up the headset and dialed a number. I could not hear, what she was saying but I noticed, that her lips moved, while she held up the ~~the~~ <sup>phone</sup> up to her ear and mouth, so someone must have answered. Soon she hanged up the phone and ~~went~~ came. After we had waited for couple of minutes, came a big black vehicle driving ether the street heading towards us. The driver and another man stepped out and offered us nicely good morning. One of the men turned around at me and ~~was~~ claimed to be from the police. He wanted to know if I was she, the one who had called them not so long ago.

I refused it, but pointed at the other woman, the exact one who explained in short matter from, what has happened. I told them, that I have been wrongly ~~accused~~ <sup>accused</sup> of theft and showed them both my bags to proof my innocence.

The police men checked the bags precisely or understood course, that this was just a misunderstanding. After a few conversations they managed to convince the women, and finally she agreed to drop the case.

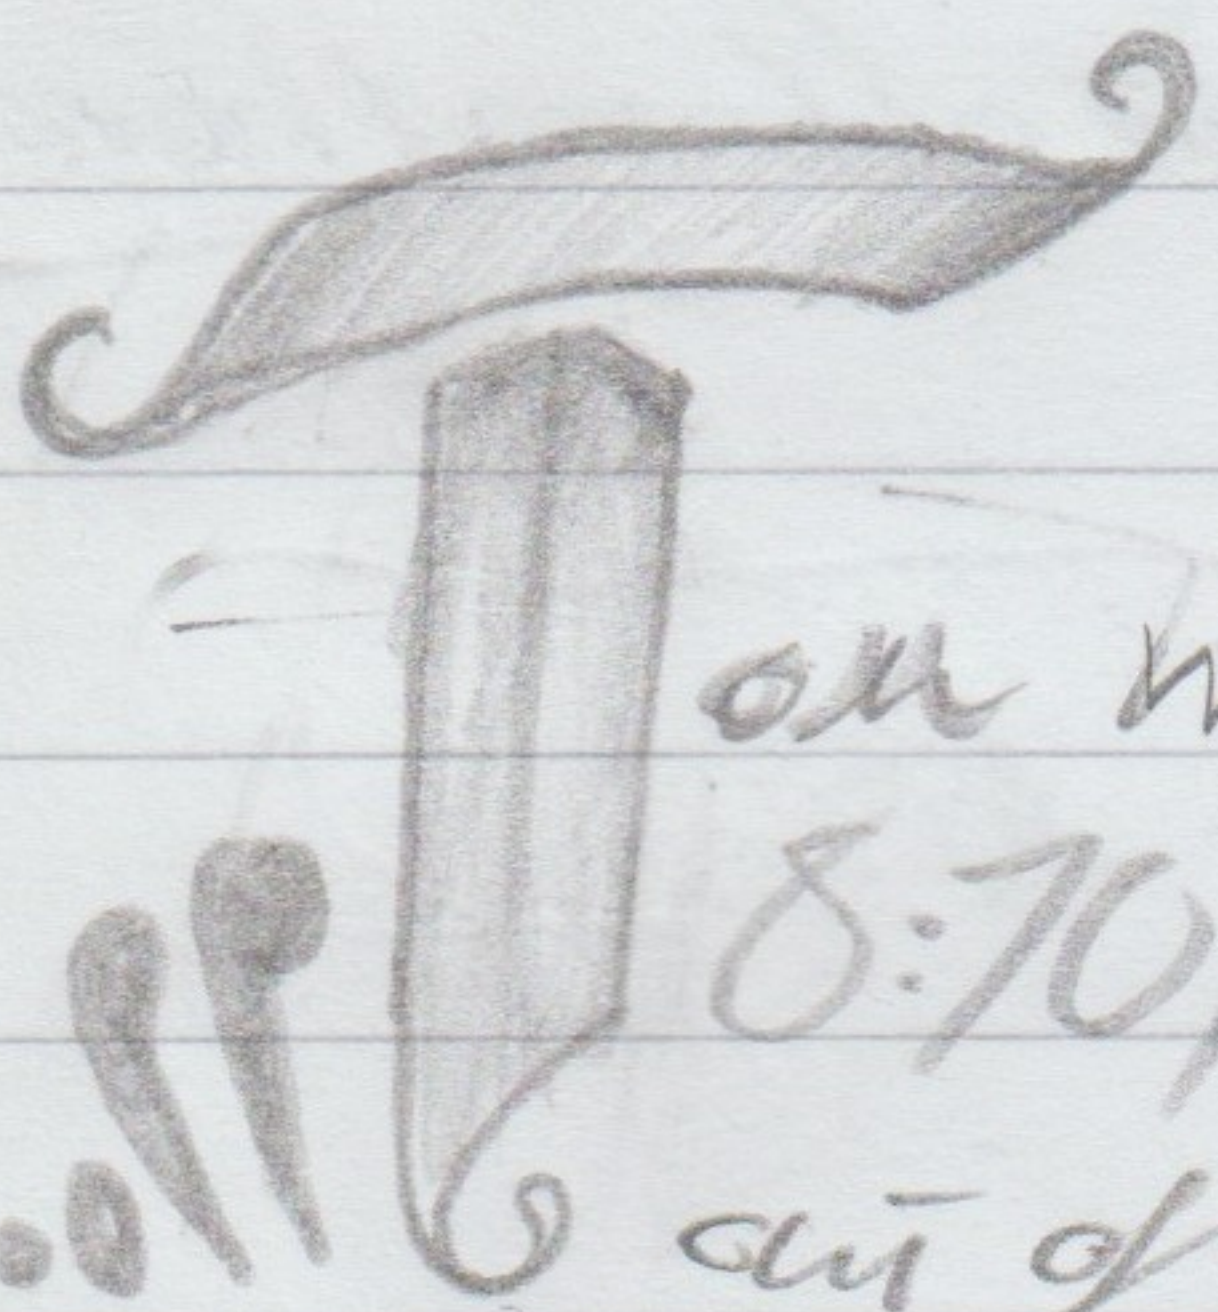

- Still - 1971

Have you ever been in an aeroplane? I have. Last weekend I flew to Akureyri. A week ago I went to the reception (the office) in RVK and bought my flight ticket. Early weekend morning I took a cab and went back to the reception with my luggage. There the men took <sup>our</sup> bags and loaded them to the plane and then, after about forty minutes, we proceeded. I was a little scared at first, because this was the first time, that I <sup>flew</sup> flew, but the <sup>friendly</sup> like woman - she was a flight attendant - brought us candy and talked to me, shortly after I was completely calmed again. We flew over many clouds. They were very white and pretty. Then we started to lower the flight (come down), because we were reaching Akureyri. It was fun. When we stepped out of the aeroplane, a bus was waiting for us, and we drove it to town.

Still.

Tom was supposed to meet his friend 8:30 PM, and now it was 8:40, so he had to hurry. He dressed up quickly and ran out of the house but suddenly remembered, that he had promise not to forget the novel, he had borrowed. He returned and got the book, which was on (lay) the table in the bedroom, and put it in his pocket. His friend was waiting for him in front of the guest house < hotel > and from there it was a short way to the station. Neither one of them knew that the train had left 2 hours ago (earlier). I told him to leave the room but he refused to go.

His back is lying on the floor. Why doesn't he pick it up? This Ellen is French isn't he? No, he is Icelandic. You would have seen him if you would have come last night. We will be going on Thursday to the United Kingdom and plan to stay there one week. You have asked the same questions every day since Easter. Tell someone ambitious boy to translate this to English. Let me know when he's done. We will get the house painted every year. How long until we reach the theater? Can I walk it in 10 minutes or do I have to take a car? You should always tell the truth. George Washington, who was the president of the United States, never told a lie. The boy will come, if you ring the bell. The girl wanted to buy a few oranges, but she had no money. I had written the letter before he came (Arrived). I read this novel two years ago, and now I'm going to read it again. He sat by his desk, when I entered the room. Peter's stepfather had more sheep than any other farmer, I knew. Where does he live? Can you run 100 meters in twelve seconds? Anyone can do it. Ma said, tea breakfast is ready. Smoking is not allowed here. You're shall be escorted by Miss Watson home.
